Abstract

This descriptive study aimed to evaluate the Mock Catering Services of third year Bachelor of Science in Cruise Ship Management students. The study was conducted during the first semester of academic year 2010-2011. The participants were the 132 attendees of the three mock catering services. The independent variable was the sex. To come up with the data needed, a rating scale was used. The findings revealed that as a whole, the mock catering services of the Third Year BSCSM students was rated as very satisfactory. The food quality and services offered by the caterers as a whole were rated very satisfactory. When categorized according to sex, both the male and female rated the food quality and catering services as very satisfactory.
